DCS Global Appoints Steven Huddleston as CEO

Provider of Patient Access Solutions Plans Rapid Revenue Cycle Innovation and New Market Expansion

DALLAS, Dec. 10, 2018 -- DCS Global ("the Company"), a leading provider of healthcare patient access and revenue cycle technology solutions, announced today that Steven Huddleston has joined the Company as its new CEO. This appointment is part of a broader strategic plan to rapidly expand the Company's market-leading solutions while introducing new products and services aimed at improving efficiency and satisfaction across patient access functions. DCS Global is a portfolio company of Tritium Partners.

Mr. Huddleston most recently served as President, Service Solutions and Chief Client Officer at nThrive, with revenue responsibility over all growth initiatives and operating responsibility over all service-delivery functions. Prior to that, he served as Managing Director in Accenture's US Healthcare Strategy practice, where he led a portfolio aimed at revenue cycle and reimbursement transformation through the thoughtful deployment of technology solutions and consumer-driven processes. Notably, Mr. Huddleston also spent 13 years with Hospital Corporation of America (HCA), where he was instrumental in the creation and launch of Parallon.

"I could not imagine a better time to join DCS Global as the market faces an unprecedented need for innovative patient access solutions to address both growing demand for improved outcomes for patients and sustained financial health for providers," said Mr. Huddleston. "I was impressed by DCS's commitment to flexible, cloud-based solutions that provide dramatic results demonstrated by high customer satisfaction and strong industry accolades. I am excited to lead the Company's effort to aggressively extend the market reach of its solutions."

Mr. Huddleston is a thought leader in the healthcare revenue cycle sector, with a proven record of guiding companies through periods of rapid growth, innovation and scale. He has worked with providers across the entire healthcare industry – from single-practice providers, to large academic medical centers, to global for-profit institutions – as these providers seek to change revenue cycle practices through broad-scale transformation that improves yield and growth.

"We are thrilled to welcome Steven to help lead our growing organization," said Manoj Chhabra, co-founder, President and Chief Innovation Officer of DCS Global. "We are confident in Steven's ability to lead the Company while we work together to advance our leading solutions and to ensure our clients continue to receive exceptional support and outcomes," said Babita Jain, co-founder and Chief Operating Officer of DCS Global.

Matt Bowman, Managing Partner of Tritium Partners, added, "Following our recent investment in DCS Global, we are thrilled to have Steven leading this next phase of the Company's growth. We conducted an extensive search to find the right executive with the requisite expertise, passion, and commitment to excellence for this exciting time as DCS extends its market awareness and product leadership."

About DCS Global

DCS Global provides software and solutions to help healthcare providers maximize revenue and reduce inefficiencies throughout the revenue cycle. The company's innovative platform iPAS (Integrated Patient Access Solutions) is designed to enhance reimbursement and collection early on in the revenue cycle by increasing the quality of patient registrations, maximizing point of service payments, and using cloud-based technology to facilitate electronic collaboration between the patient, provider, and payer. With over 200 hospitals using its solutions, including large and small systems, academic medical centers, independents, and physician groups, DCS Global is uniquely positioned to improve the revenue cycle for all healthcare providers.
